Citations and Reference

It is very important to correctly format the references. Here, the references have been formatted according to the IEEE style. For example, Lamport [1] and Faugeras and Long [2] are books. See how the author, the italicized title, the edition, the publisher and the year are included. Kalman [3] and Papenbeg et al. [4] are journal papers (articles or transactions). Viola et al. [5] is a reference to a conference paper. References to conference proceedings must include where the conference was held. Bem [6] is a book chapter. In fact, Bem [6] is a good article for one to read about writing a good paper. References to web sites are discouraged, but may be included if absolutely necessary along with the date accessed. For example, motivation, problem statement, approach, results, and conclusions are the important constituents of an abstract [7]. You may order your references according to the order of citing them.

References

[1] L. Lamport, LaTeX: A Document Preparation System, 2nd ed. Addison-Wesley, 1994.

[2] O. Faugeras and Q.-T. Long, The Geometry of Multiple Images. The MIT Press, 2001.

[3] R. E. Kalman, "A new approach to linear filtering and prediction problems," Trans. of the ASME–J. Basic Eng., vol. 82, no. Series D, pp. 35–45, 1960.

[4] N. Papenberg, A. Bruhn, T. Brox, S. Didas, and J. Weickert, "Highly accurate optic flow computation with theoretically justified warping," Int. J. Comp. Vis., vol. 67, no. 2, pp. 141–158, February 2006.

[5] P. Viola and M. Jones, "Rapid object selection using a boosted cascade of simple features," in Proc. IEEE Conf. Comp. Vis. Patt. Recogn., Hawaii, December 2001, pp. 511–518.

[6] D. J. Bem, "Writing the empirical journal article," in The Compleat Academic: A Practical Guide for the Beginning Social Scientist, J. M. Darley and M. P. Zanna, Eds. New York: Random House, 1987, ch. 8, pp. 171–201.

[7] P. Koopman. (1997, October) How to write an abstract. Carnegie Mellon University. [Online]. Available: http://www.ece.cmu.edu/ koopman/essays/abstract.html